Dear Britney,

As a long-time fan of you and your music, your videos revealing you six-pack abs may just be as world famous as Frank Sinatra's blue eyes. Unfortunately, childbearing and motherhood can rob you of those assets...or at least play havoc with them. I'd like to give "sexy" back to you...and everyone else...so we can all enjoy the old Britney, again.

You made worldwide headlines, last week, as a global audience had the chance to view a lot more than your night on the town with Paris Hilton. While those pictures have become an Internet phenomenon, my trained surgeon's eye uncovered the enduring effects of your recent C-section birthing experience. Therefore, as one of your devoted fans who happens to be a leading plastic surgeon, I'd like to give you a Holiday present – a tummy tuck that will restore your midriff to it's previous muscle tone and firmness.

In my experience, I've performed successful cosmetic procedures on more than 200 women that have been featured in Playboy; 4 of which were Playmates of the Month. As a result, I do know just how important it is to maintain your image, look perfect as you can and never get caught with your pants down. But, if you do, at least you will be prepared.

Wishing you...and yours...the Happiest Holiday Season and Best Wishes for a Healthy, Prosperous New Year.
